ABSTRACT

This selective bibliography of pericdical literature deals with the subject of women and their changing role in society. The span of time covered is primarily 1960 to the present, with a scattering of articles from much earlier dates. This bibliography offers citations from many areas, e.g., social science, education, and the humanities, and although the bibliography is divided into broad subject categories, these groupings are often overlapping and interrelated. PREFACE

The CSUS Library's collections on the subject of women have been growing rapidly over recent years under the guidance of Leah Freeman, Assistant Social Science Reference Librarian. Her intense interest in the subject, her persistence in collecting, and her expertise in the utilization of the collections has brought great credit to California State University, Sacramento and made Ms. Freeman widely known as an authority in the field.

This bibliography, as Ms. Freeman points out in her Introduction, is the outgrowth of her personal "ready reference" notes - information she has gathered to provide assistance to interested patrons. Presented in this form, it is our hope that the bibliography will be useful to a wider audience.

Since 1969, the University Library has published a series of bibliographies designed to aid our patrons to make more effective use of our resources. These bibliographies are not intended to be comprehensive listings of all known material on a particular subject, but rather a selection from among materials available at CSUS.

Complimentary copies of this and many of the previous publications in the series are available to students and faculty members at the Card Catalog Information Desk on the second floor and at other Information/Reference Desks in the Library. As always, your comments and suggestions on these publications will be greatly appreciated.

Gordon P. Martin
University Librarian

INTRODUCTION

Begun as this librarian's "ready reference file", Women on the Move is a selective bibliography of periodical literature dealing with the subject of women and their changing role in our society. While the span of time covered is approximately 1960 to the present, sharp-eyed observers will note that a scattering of articles from much earlier dates are included, just as they will note that the majority of references cluster in the 1970's. Women on the Move is intended to supplement the excellent reference tool Women's Studies Abstracts, which should also be consulted. My purpose here is to offer additional citations from many areas, e.g., social science, education, and the humanities. And although the bibliography is divided into broad subject categories, the scholar should realize that these groupings are often overlapping and interrelated. A vigorous, multifaceted, and evolving social movement is not easily categorized and "balance" may not always be the paramount virtue. But if it proves little else, the citations in this bibliography are a reflection of the fact that women today are indeed on the move.

Many people were helpful in making this bibliography possible. I would like to extend a special note of thanks to Patricia French, Library Assistant, and Fran Rademacher, Student Assistant, both of the Social Science and Business Administration Reference Department. Thanks also go to every staff member who called to my attention articles and special periodical issues.

Leah Freeman
Assistant Social Science
Reference Librarian
